

FEDERAL POPULATION SCHEDULES: FREE

The population schedules for the 1790 and 1800 censuses in Virginia are no longer extant. The 1790 schedules have been reconstructed and published in three volumes that supplement each other: Fothergill, Augusta Bridgland Middleton. Virginia Tax Payers, 1782-87; Other Than Those Published by the United States Census Bureau. Baltimore: Genealogical Pub. Co., 1971 [Kegley F225.F6 1971 Case]; United States. Bureau of the Census. . . . Heads of Families at the First Census of the United States Taken in the Year 1790: Records of the State Enumerations, 1782 to 1785, Virginia. Washington, DC: Government Printing Office, 1908 [Kegley HA681.5.1790.U6 Case]. The latter volume is also available in a reprint edition published in 1978 by Accelerated Indexing Systems [Kegley HA681.5.1790.U6 1978 Case]; and Yantis, Netti Schreiner. The 1787 Census of Virginia. Springfield, VA: Genealogical Books in Print, c1987 [Kegley HA681.5.1787.V8 Case].

The original 1890 population schedules for Virginia (and most other states) were destroyed by fire in 1921. The National Archives does have some schedules of a special census of Union veterans and widows in 1890, including the state of Virginia. Our library owns an index to these records [Kegley HA681.5 1890.V52 Case].

The types of information to be found in the population schedules from 1810 through 1910 varies considerably and has been summarized in tables (taken from the Guide to Genealogical Research in the National Archives. Washington, DC: National Archives and Records Service, 1982) which follow the list of our library holdings.

Our library has on microfilm the population schedules for the free inhabitants of the counties listed on the attached table. The Virginia Tech library has a complete microfilm collection of all available population and nonpopulation census schedules.

FEDERAL POPULATION SCHEDULES: SLAVE

For the 1850 and 1860 censuses separate slave schedules were compiled. These schedules give the name of each slaveholder, along with the number of slaves owned and manumitted. Under the slaveholder's name, a line for each slave shows age, color, sex, whether or not a deaf-mute, blind, insane, or idiotic; and whether or not a fugitive from the state. The names of individual slaves were not entered.

Our library has the slave schedules for the following counties on microfilm:

FEDERAL NONPOPULATION SCHEDULES

For the four censuses beginning in 1850 there exist schedules of detailed information in addition to those covering the general population. The areas covered in these schedules are:

- Mortality - listings of those persons who died during the year preceding June 1 of the census year
- Agriculture - detailed information about each farm, its assets and produce
- Industry - detailed information on various industrial and commercial concerns

In addition to these three types of detailed schedules, the same series of microfilms from the National Archives contains summary (i.e., not detailed) social statistics for the census from 1850 through 1870. These summaries cover such information as: taxes, newspapers, average wages, churches, schools, crime, etc. For 1880 only there is a detailed listing of what the Census Bureau referred to as "Defective, Delinquent and Dependent Classes." These groups include individuals in any of seven categories: insane, idiots, deaf-mutes, blind, homeless children, prisoners, and paupers.

A description of the nature of each of the detailed schedules in each of the censuses follows. The information has been taken from the Guide to Genealogical Research in the National Archives. Washington, DC: National Archives and Records Service, 1982, pages 23-25.

1850 Mortality schedules. The mortality schedules give the following information for each person who died during the year ending 1 June 1850: name; age; sex; color (white, black, or mulatto); whether married or widowed; place of birth; occupation; month of death; cause of death; number of days ill.

Agriculture schedules. Every farm with an annual produce worth $100 or more for the year ending 1 June 1850 was enumerated, giving the name of the owner, agent, or tenant and the kind and value of acreage, machinery, livestock, and produce.

Industrial schedules. For the year ending 1 June 1850, the enumerators recorded information about manufacturing, mining, fisheries, and every mercantile, commercial, and trading business with an annual gross produce of $500 or more. The schedules show the name of the company or owner; kind of business; amount of capital invested; and quantity and value of materials, labor, machinery, and products.

1860 Mortality schedules. The mortality schedules give the following information about each person who died during the year ending 1 June 1860: name; age; sex; color (black, white, or mulatto); whether slave or free; whether married or widowed; place of birth; occupation; month of death; cause of death; and number of days ill.

Agriculture schedules. For the year ending 1 June 1860, the schedules show the name of the owner, agent, or tenant of farms with an annual produce worth $100 or more. The enumerators also recorded information about the kind and value of acreage, machinery, livestock, and produce.

Industrial schedules. For the year ending 1 June 1860, the enumerators recorded information about manufacturing, mining, fisheries, and all kinds of mercantile, commercial, and trading businesses, if the annual gross product amounted to $500. The schedules show the name of the company or owner; kind of business; capital investment; and quantity and value of materials, labor, machinery, and products.

1870 Mortality schedules. The schedules show the following information about each person who died within the year ending 1 June 1870: name; age; sex; whether white, black, mulatto, Chinese, or Indian; whether married or widowed; place of birth; whether father and mother foreign-born; occupation; month of death; and cause of death.

Agriculture schedules. For the year ending 1 June 1870, the schedules show the name of the owner, agent, or tenant of farms of three acres or more or with an annual produce worth $500. The enumerators also recorded information about the kind and value of acreage, machinery, livestock, and produce.

Industrial schedules. The enumerators recorded information about manufacturing, mining, and fisheries if the annual gross product amounted to $500 for the year ending 1 June 1870. The schedules show the name of the company or owner, kind of business, amount of capital invested, and information about the quantity and value of materials, labor, machinery, and products.

1880 Mortality schedules. The schedules give the following information about each person who died during the year ending 1 June 1880: name, age, sex; color; marital status; occupation; place of birth; length of residence in the United States; place of birth of father and mother; month of death; cause of death; place cause of death was contracted; and name of attending physician. In Massachusetts, New Jersey, the District of Columbia and nineteen large cities, this information was compiled from official registrations of deaths, and the regular mortality schedules were not used.

Agriculture schedules. The schedules pertain to the year ending 1 June 1880 and show the name of the owner, agent, or tenant of farms of three acres or more or with an annual produce worth $500. The enumerators also recorded information about the quantity and value of acreage, machinery, livestock, and produce.

Industrial schedules. Special agents, rather than the regular enumerators, recorded information for certain large industries and in cities of more than 8,000 inhabitants. These schedules are not extant. The regular enumerators did continue to collect information on general industry schedules and special schedules for twelve industries. The schedules show the name of the company or owner and much specific information about the kind, quantity, and value of materials, labor, machinery, and products.

The entire series of nonpopulation schedules for Virginia comprises 34 reels of microfilm. The WCC Library has only those reels which contain information on Wythe County, though many other counties (arranged alphabetically) are included on these reels.

Following are the contents of the reels of microfilm in the WCC Library:

NAME INDEX TO 1850-1880 WYTHE COUNTY INDUSTRIAL CENSUS SCHEDULES

The following pages contain the names of those individuals and businesses listed for Wythe County in the censuses of industry for 1850 through 1880. A number of the names (especially in the 1880 schedule) are barely legible or totally illegible and have therefore either been omitted altogether or marked with question marks in this index. Also in the 1880 census, a number of businesses were listed under a pre-determined heading (e.g., "Lumber Mills & Saw-Mills) rather than by a "fill-in-the-blank" description of the businesses, as had earlier censuses. Consequently, the entries under the heading "Industry" in the second column do not necessarily reflect the nature of each business completely and accurately.

No page numbers are given because the schedules themselves are short enough to facilitate the location of a given name even without page numbers. A given name may be found on more than one page in a given year's schedules; this is especially true of the 1880 schedule.
